Risk-IT and Capacity Management

A spotlight on ISACA's new framework, Risk-IT - *Steven Babb, KPMG

IT risk is receiving growing attention from executive management, risk managers, regulators etc. The COBIT® Framework provides a generally accepted control framework (amongst many other things), but it does not provide the full detail required for comprehensive risk management.

In this session, you will find out about ITGI's newest initiative: a new IT related risk management framework. Steven will discuss the issues around IT related risks, which standards and frameworks address this risk, which elements are still lacking, and how the new framework will address these issues.

There May be Trouble Head... - *Cathy Brown, BT

This presentation will look at Risk Management in an uncertain world. With the clouds of economic, social and environmental instability already on us, the author takes a look at traditional Risk Management disciplines and processes, gives an overview of common IT Risks in the current climate and assesses the contribution that Capacity and Performance Management can make to successful management of IT and corporate risks such as recession and climate change.

Cathy Brown is an Executive IT Auditor with BT. As well as her CISA accreditation, she holds the ITIL V3 Managers Certificate and COBIT accreditation. Cathy is a member of the British Standards Institute review panel for ISO20000 and is a regular speaker on IT Service Management, Auditing and Control activities.
